For the third consecutive year, Johannes Vogt Gallery is pleased to present "The Barn Show" on a private property in East Hampton. For the first time the gallery is collaborating with an independent curator for this project. Titled "Unquestionable Optimism" this year's show is curated by Lindsay Howard and features twenty artists who work in diverse media.

Unquestionable Optimism brings together artists who maintain a persistent focus on positivity in their work, often in an effort to persuade, exaggerate, or cultivate a particular point of view. Many of these artists use either images or materials from popular culture as a way to break down and understand messages of affirmation. Through these works, the exhibition reinforces the notion that the future will indeed be great – so long as we don't question it.
